REPUBLICAN TARIFF MUST TAKE SECOND PLACE FOR SOLDIER'S BONUS SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE DECIDES

Chairman McCumber Expected To Get His Committee To Work On The Bill Today, As Senators Feel Issue Should Be Squarely Met.

DEMOCRATS READY TO FIGHT TARIFF

Washington, D. C., April 21.—The Republican tariff bill will be shoved aside to clear the way for the soldier bonus, Senator McCumber, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, announced today. McCumber expected to get the committee to work on the bonus bill today. A strong feeling was manifesting itself today among Republican Senators that the Senate ought to meet squarely the question of a cash bonus. Senator Lenroot and others have begun advocating simplification of the problem by the issuance of Treasury certificates. According to McCumber there will be no more delay or hesitation.

Tariff discussion begun yesterday was resumed today with Senator Simmons, the Democratic leader, prepared to begin his fight against the measure.

RUSSIA WILL RECOGNIZE PRE-WAR DEBTS CONDITIONED UPON RECOGNITION BY ALLIED POWERS, CONFERENCE IS TOLD

Genoa, Italy, April 21.—Russia has recognized her pre-war debts conditional upon de jure recognition of the Soviet government by the Allies. This was Russia's reply to the Allied experts' proposals delivered by the Soviet delegation. Russia's reply, which was considered for over a week, covered twenty type-written pages. General acceptance of the terms laid down by the Allied experts covered the first half page of the document and the remainder of the test was argumentative.

Rome, Italy, April 21.—Soviet representatives have signed a treaty with the Vatican permitting Jesuits and Catholic sisterhoods to enter Russia and carry out educational work. This was interpreted as the first move to bring the Orthodox Russian Church into the Catholic Church.

WHITE SLAVERS PLY NEFARIOUS TRADE IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, N. Y., April 21.—The third kidnapping of a young girl within a week came to light today. Warnings have been sent out of wide spread operations of white slavers. Minnie Zarrinbock aged 16, who was rescued today from a gang who have kept her without a vestige of clothing, plying her with drugs, told the police she had been kidnapped while on an errand, by a man who dragged her into a taxicab. Her captor, William Wissinger, was in bed when the police broke into the room where he was keeping the girl captive. Another girl was dragged into a hallway by five men, but was afterward rescued.

Shot Man For Groundhog And Gets 2 Years In Jail

Williamsport, April 20.—Geo. W. Sweeley, of Nisbet, found guilty at the December sessions of criminal court on the charge of shooting C. W. Carroll, also of Nisbet, in mistake for game, upon appearing before Judge Harvey W. Whitehead yesterday was ordered to pay $500 to the personal representative of Mr. Carroll (the cost of prosecution and undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of two years.

Teh court further ordered that Mr. Sweeley be not permitted to hunt in this commonwealth for a period of ten years from the date of his conviction, November 28, 1921. Charles W. Carroll was shot on the afternoon of August 22, 1921, by Mr. Sweeley, who was berry picking and also hunting for groundhogs. The defendant thought he saw a groundhog a short distance away and fired. Later he discovered that he had shot Mr. Carroll, killing him instantly. The unfortunate man was found to be trapping groundhogs at the time.

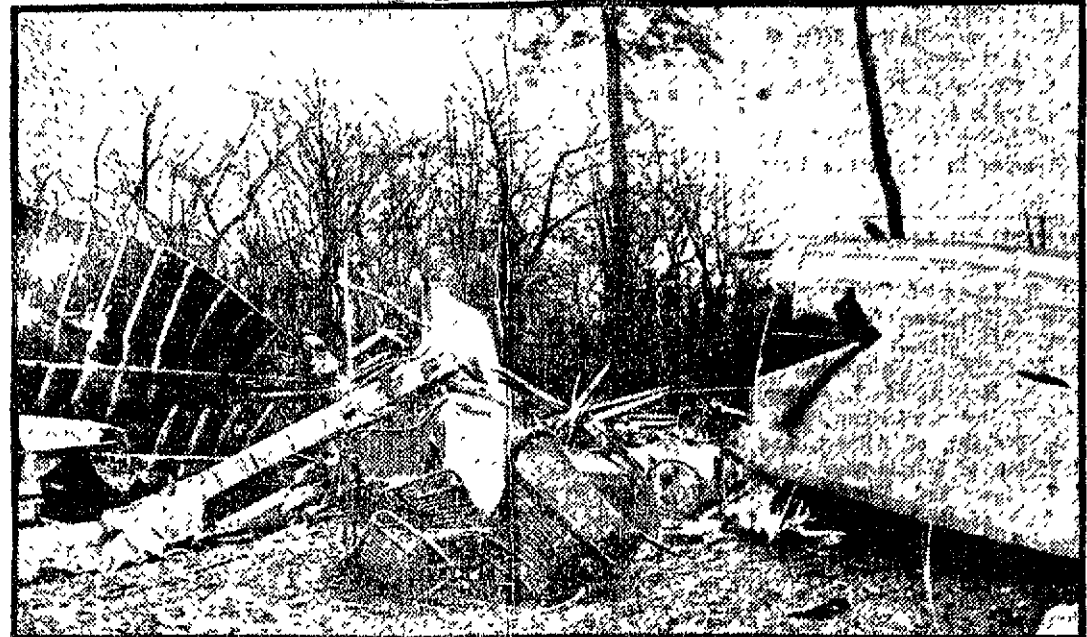

COAL STRIKE SLOWS UP BIG STEEL MILLS

Connellsville, Pa., April 21.—With coke production dropping at the rate of 25,000 tons per week the crippled steel industry in the Pittsburgh district today faced further shutdowns. Their stocks of coke eaten up and unwilling to pay the heavy price of $5.50 a ton, a number of plants are planning to bank their blast furnaces Saturday. Production has dwindled to 45,000 tons a week compared to 52,000 on April 1st.

Additional Hospitals For Ex-Service Men

Washington, D. C., April 21.—President Harding today signed the bill authorizing appropriation of $17,000,000 for building additional hospitals to care for disabled veterans of the world war.

CAMBRIA LABOR LEADER ENDORSES ALTER FOR GOV.

Harrisburg, April 20.—James Dunn of Nanty-Glo, Cambria county, a former miner and member of the legislature from Cambria county during the 1911 session, today called attention to the fact that the first speech delivered before a Pennsylvania legislature on behalf of workmen's compensation was that of George E. Alter, on May 16, 1911. Mr. Alter who is now candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Pennsylvania, was a member of the house during the 1909, 1911 and 1913 sessions. He was Speaker of the House during the 1917 session.

"I sponsored the Workmen's Compensation bill passed by the House in 1911," said Mr. Dunn today. "I was aided by Mr. Alter in getting the measure into shape. It was revolutionary in Pennsylvania, and was vigorously attacked. It passed first and second readings with little difficulty, however, and was made a special order for consideration at noon on Tuesday, May 16, 1911. At that time V. Gilpin Robinson of Delaware county took the floor against it. I made brief reply to him, as did John R. K. Scott, of Philadelphia; and then Mr. Alter made the first speech ever delivered in the Pennsylvania assembly on behalf of this legislation. That his effort for the measure was successful is evidenced by the fact that on final passage the vote was 112 yeas to 52 nays. The bill then went to the State Senate, where it died in committee.

"Mr. Alter's kindness to me during that period, and the great interest he manifested on behalf of the people of Pennsylvania through his taking up this compensation measure, naturally result in my doing everything in my power to secure his nomination. The present attorney general displayed ability and bigness of heart in such degree that I cannot do otherwise than work for his success. His legislative record will show that at all times he was for those measures which were for the benefit of labor."

Mr. Dunn at this time is a jury commissioner for Cambria county. He is very well known among the bituminous coal miners of Cambria, Clearfield, Indiana and Jefferson counties.

FLOODS CONTINUE HAVOC IN ILLINOIS

Vincennes, Ind., April 21.—Rusellville, Ill., was flooded today when a holding back the Wabash river gave way. Homes in the little town of 200 crumbled before the sweep of the water.

Washington, D. C., April 21.—Congress today came to the aid of the flood-stricken lowlands along the Mississippi river. Within an hour after convening both Houses passed an appropriation making 1,000,000 immediately available for strengthening the river levees. President Harding's signature is expected today or tomorrow.

Miss Anna Williamson is visiting friends in Jersey Shore, this week.

BELFAST IS AGAIN SCENE OF SHOOTING; REBELS ACTIVE AGAIN

Belfast, Ireland, April 21.—Hundreds of gunmen participated in street battles during the worst night of terror Belfast has known for months. The fighting last night and early today in the Ballymacarrett district was particularly severe. Gangsters came boldly into the streets and were shot by rival bands from roofs. Seventeen persons were wounded.

Dublin, Ireland, April 21.—Irish Republican rebels have captured the British wireless station at Bunbeg, in Donegal, in the North of Ireland, according to a report from London today. The British naval men operating the wireless station were reported to have been ejected.

The Way Of A Maid With A Man Is Exasperating

Paris, France, April 21.—Mary Louisa Baker four times since arriving here has changed her mind about whether and when she will marry Albert McCormick. This was the answer furnished today by Viscount Janze, who spoke for Miss Baker, to questions as to what she had decided. The mystery of the Chicago girl's romance deepens every hour. Albert McCormick is in Paris today reading reporters and buying an automobile. Miss Baker was said by Viscount Janze to be touring France with his former maid. He said he did not know where they were. A maid at the Janze residence said Viscount Janze was at home.

CANDIDATE ALTER ALTERED HIS PLANS

Attorney General Alter, organization candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, who was scheduled to pay Clearfield a visit this evening, was forced to deny himself the pleasure of a trip into our County at this time on account of the fact that he had to go to Philadelphia from Allentown to appear for the State at the argument of an important case before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court now in session in the Quaker City.

Candidate Alter will visit Clearfield voters at a later day.

"NO GAME; SNOW!" IS PITTSBURGH STORY

Pittsburg, Pa., April 21.—The game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cards was postponed today on account of snow. Two and one half inches of snow fell during the night.

WILL PRINT THE BALLOTS

The ballots for the primary election in Clearfield county this year will be printed at the office of the Raftman's Journal. The contract for the printing was awarded the Journal office by the County Commissioners this morning at their bid of $541, which was the lowest out of four received.

ROTARIANS HAVE LADIES' NIGHT WITH A FINE PROGRAM

Ladies night at the Clearfield Rotary Club attracted about one hundred Rotarians and guests to the regular weekly meeting of the organization which was held at the Hotel Dimeling last evening. The Entertainment Committee had an especially fine program prepared for the occasion and the evening was a very enjoyable one.

President Ward O. Wilson was Master of ceremonies and managed to get 100 per cent of fun out of every situation.

In addition to the regular Rotary singing a special musical program was given. Mrs. E. C. Reeve, on costume, sang an aria from the Mikado, with most pleasing effect, while a sextette of Rotary Anne's composed of Mrs. Philip B. Reed, Mrs. Reeve, Mrs. Howard Stewart, Mrs. John Gearhart, Miss Madeline Porter and Mrs. Harry Boulton, garbed in gingham and sunbonnets, made a real hit with their snappy little songs. They essayed a little "barber shop" harmony during which the assemblage was given opportunity to make ocular comparison of the merits of Herpicide and Bare to Hair. This latter stunt was real captivating and brought forth very hearty applause.

Little Miss Miriam Porter, in black face, made the announcements and got a "great hand" for a couple of cute and pointed little recitations. Madeline Porter's reciting of "Daddy's Story After Joining Rotary" also came in for much merited praise.

Bruce "took a picture" of the gang and evened up for one of those "Bar-num was Right" stunts of several weeks ago. He was assisted by "Alfred J. Oak," otherwise Fred Phillips, an Osceola photographer.

President Wilson announced that the election of officers would be held at the meeting on Thursday of next week and invited all the members to go to Philipsburg on Tuesday next and assist in the institution of the Philipsburg Rotary Club.

ANOTHER JACK THE RIPPER MURDER

Chicago, Ill., April 21.—The nude body of a beautiful blonde woman, about thirty years of age, was found in a van moving van on the South Side here today. The body was covered with bruises. The woman had been dead only a few hours. A bloody spot on a door step just a few blocks from where the body was found led the police to believe that it had been dragged out before daybreak today.

New York, N. Y., April 21.—The Police today were without an angle clue in the second Jewish murder of a woman to occur in New York with in two weeks. Mrs. Elizabeth Brodowitzy was found slain and her body mangled almost beyond recognition in the coal bin of a fan apartment. Mrs. Brodowitzy's body was found by her husband when she failed to prepare his evening meal.

Miss Helen Cole, of Pittsburgh, is spending her Easter vacation with relatives in Clearfield.

THIRTY THOUSAND INHABITANTS OF MONASTIR AND VICINITY HOMELESS AS RESULT OF MUNITIONS EXPLOSION

London, England, April 21.—Thirty thousand inhabitants of Monastir and vicinity are reported homeless today as the result of a terrific explosion of a munitions train which caused the death of hundreds of soldiers and many children.

The explosion was at first reported as having occurred at Salonika. Later dispatches from Belgrade showed it took place along the railroad running into Monastir. Part of the city is still burning and, owing to the danger from shells and other explosives, thousands of inhabitants have sought refuge in the woods.

Pennsy Managers Continue Attempt To Bring Down Wages

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—Renewing the movement to reduce wages of train service employees general Managers of the Pennsylvania Railroad conferred here today with representatives of the Big Four Brotherhoods. A similar conference held two weeks ago in Philadelphia was without result. The Pennsy management it was reported, seeks to bring about the reduction by changes in working conditions and elimination of time and half time for over time.

STORY TELLING FOR KIDDIES SATURDAY

A story telling hour for the children of the Market Street school and their younger brothers and sisters will be held in the school building at ten o'clock this Saturday morning by a number of women who have formed a Story Telling Club as part of the activities of Clearfield Community Service. Mrs. H. W. Stewart is acting as Chairman of the group which includes a number of those who heard the talks Mrs. Hanley of Community Service gave on the subject a week or so ago. It is hoped that the number interested will be increased, so that the story telling may become an important part of the playground program this summer. It is planned to have these story telling hours each Saturday morning during the spring for the children of each of the grade schools in succession.

DOGS ARE RUNNING DEER ALONG CREEK

H. L. Shaffer, who is employed at the Eyre Collieries on the Owens Farm, near Clearfield Creek, informed the Progress that he saw three dogs chasing a doe, heavy with fawn, in the woods above the mine opening last night. Mr. Shaffer said he endeavored to head the dogs off and succeeded in driving them away from their quarry for a few minutes but they circled him and again took up the trail and could be heard chasing the deer over hill and dale long into the night. One of the dogs was a huge yellow collie, while the others were black and white and smaller dogs.

There are several deer located in the woods along the creek and dogs have been reported chasing them several times recently and State Game Warden Davis has been asked to go out and kill the dogs if possible and prosecute the owners to the limit. There is a fine of $25 per day for the owner of any dog caught running deer and if a few careless dog owners are made to pay the penalty in addition to having their dogs killed, we may be spared the necessity of recording such happenings as the above.

CHERRY TREE HAS 3 INCHES OF SNOW

Play Leaders' Party At High School Last Evening Was Success

The first session of the play leaders institute held in the High School gymnasium by Clearfield Community Service last evening was a great success. The program was put on as a play party and the games actually played by all who were present, and it was a revelation to those who have been thinking that dancing is the only way to have a good time, to watch the excitement and listen to the shouts of the men and women, and boys and girls, all playing together in an old fashioned or newly invented game. The next session of the course will be held on Saturday evening, beginning promptly at 7:30 and closing promptly at 9. They afford an opportunity to learn how to lead games, a valuable social asset, and also to spend a thoroughly enjoyable and rather novel evening.

In the Pittsburgh bituminous district 80,398 are reported out on strike; the Johnstown district reports 60,000 out in the Monongahela and Youghiogheny valleys the number is said to be 30,000 while in the New Kensington district there are 16,000 strikers.

FARM BUREAU BULLETIN

Fruit blossom time is the best to start beekeeping. The first suggestion to beginners according to the County Agent Sterrett is to secure good literature and read up on the subject before purchasing bees. The American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Ill., and Gleanings in Bee Culture, Medina, O., are bee journals that are helpful, and the United States Department of Agriculture issues a large number of bulletins in bee keeping that may be secured by writing for them.

Professor George H. Rea, the extension bee specialist at the Pennsylvania State College says that the beginner should use the regular ten framed Langstroth hive, which can be obtained from any bee supply manufacturer. The frames should be well wired and with full sheets of comb foundation. The hive can be best filled now by placing it with a beekeeper who will agree to have a swarm into it.

Only Italian bees are worthy of attention and most breeders have them. The beginner had best produce comb honey. For this purpose the 4 by 5 inch, or the 4 1/4 by 4 1/4 inch section with fence separators are best. Special information on bee problems can be obtained from the college through the county agent.

The storage of eggs in the season of high egg production, when low prices prevail, for use during the season of low production with high prices is entirely practical and economical for home consumption. The most satisfactory preservative is water glass, which can be obtained at most stores. The equipment necessary is sufficient containers to hold the eggs and still allow for the liquid to cover them to a depth of about two inches. Use strictly fresh, infertile eggs. Place them in the containers, and then pour in the liquid. Water glass solution is usually prepared by using one part water glass to nine parts water. Keeping this in a cool dry place is advised. A four gallon crock will easily contain about four dozen eggs. Approximately eight quarts of the liquid will be necessary to properly preserve the eggs.

These eggs can be very satisfactorily used for any method of cooking, except that when they are boiled for table use, it is advisable to prick the large end of the egg so that the air may escape. Sometime the white of the egg will take on a pinkish cast which is entirely harmless for eatable purposes. Often times also the liquid will turn white and a gelatinous material stick to the eggs which is easily washed off. This is entirely harmless. It should be remembered, however, that the preserving solution is good for one year only.

Further information on this subject can be obtained at the Farm Bureau Office or the Poultry Extension Department, State College, Pa.

mercial fertilizers, manure or both, are essential as good culture, good disease free seed, or spraying. The potato is a weak feeder and for the best results ready available plant food must be supplied in abundance. For that reason potatoes should never be planted on poor soil. The come never reaching perfect on in both quality and in yield on well drained fertile shale or loam soils, having a good clover sod with a coat of manure plowed down in late fall or early spring.

Under such conditions 500 to 800 pounds of acid phosphate per acre should be applied, say County Agent Sterrett. Where potatoes follow a well manured timothy sod or well manured corn ground, 200 to 1200 pounds per acre of a 3-12 mixture should be applied. If a clover sod not manured is turned down, then it becomes necessary to use potash, and 800 to 1000 pounds of a 3-12-4 mixture is used. If the soil is not naturally fertile, the percentage of ammonia may be increased up to four per cent. Potatoes following timothy should receive at least 1000 to 1500 pounds of a 4-10-4 or 6 mixture.

When the effect on the potato crop only is considered it makes little difference whether the fertilizer is all applied in the row or half put in the row and the other half broadcast. When the crop following potatoes is considered it is better to put half in the row and broadcast the other half. The broadcasting may be done either before or after the potatoes are planted.

When planting by hand, the best plan is to broadcast all either before or after planting. Experiments have not shown any advantage in making light applications at frequent intervals during the growing season.

"Canadian thistles can be eradicated if the soil they occupy can be made to grow alfalfa successfully," County Agent Sterrett says to Clearfield County farmers who are bothered with this weed. The soil must be well limed for tile and well drained before the alfalfa will make proper growth. The frequent cuttings and the character of the alfalfa roots will crowd out the weeds.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womanhood. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. of any of his remedies, or write for free medical advice.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

This is a queer old world we live in; it is full of queer happenings and queerer people. Being of an inquisitive turn of mind and desiring to get a line on what our Clearfield county neighbors are doing, we dropped into the Court House yesterday afternoon and after examining the records in the different offices found that since the first of the year 202 Clearfield county fellows decided to get married and secured the legal permit to wed the woman of their choice.

Then while these fellows were running their necks into the matrimonial yoke, the divorce court records disclosed that 22 disillusioned married fellows had appealed to the court to be divorced.

A visit to the Sheriff's office further disclosed that no less than 77 residents of the County had got themselves into jail since the first of the year, while the County Treasurer's books showed that 2200 other fellows over 21 years of age had invested $1.10 each in a license to fish for trout.

That a n industrial railway banking combination," headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., controls the National railroads, coal mines, banks, steel and other industries, was the charge made by W. Jett Lauck, economist for the American Federation of Labor, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which is making a general railroad survey. He declared financiers rather than operating officials were responsible for "the present plight of the railroads," and accused them of trying to "deflate" railroad as well as other labor.

"This combine exercises a power over the economic destiny of the United States. It deflated the farmers and then undertook to deflate labor. It is pointed out that this local capitalist or credit group has deliberately maintained high prices of steel, coal, cement and other basic materials and that railroads financed by the same interests have refused to place orders for plant maintenance.

"The consequences of the general policy practiced by every branch of the giant combination, beginning with the restriction of bank credit itself, have clamped a brake, so to speak, upon a 11 industry and have intensified unemployment designed in the general policy of the capital combination.

Secretary of the Treasury Andy Mellon says the United States government will face a deficit of not less than $484,000,000 at the end of the present fiscal year or on July 1, 1922. It may be much more than that amount too, Andy says.

That treaty between the Russians and Germany appears to be raising the devil over at Genoa. It would of course make no difference to Americans were we represented there, because the Russ and the German only did what America and Germany accomplished in our separate treaty with Germany. Why the howl now?

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, head of Pennsylvania's Department of Education, evidently does not believe rouge dabbling girls will be "frightful, fat and forty" some day. Here is Finegan's recently expressed view of the flapper and her works:

"Girls in Pennsylvania schools can wear knickers to school so far as I am concerned," Finegan says, "They can use a bit of rouge if their mothers don't object. So long as they get their lessons and attend school regularly we have nothing to say.

"The very people who are filling the newspapers with columns of condemnation about the younger set are the people who could look back one or two generations and remember things done then that would make our present youngsters blush.

"There always were a certain number of girls who smoked cigarettes in boarding school and of boys who thought it looked grown-up to drink. 'Rouge' isn't a creation of the past few years—it always was used and always will be."

WILL BUILD BRIDGE AT ROLLING STONE COMING SUMMER

County Commissioner T. R. Weimer returned last evening from Harrisburg, where he had attended the opening of the bids for the building of improved roads in Clearfield County. Mr. Weimer told The Progress morning that while in Harrisburg he visited the Committee on Buildings and Grounds and took up with them the matter of the building of the Rolling Stone and Leger Creek bridges over the Susquehanna River. He said he was given assurance that the Rollingstone bridge would be built the coming summer, and that as soon as the water fell sufficiently to allow an examination of the foundations of the piers and abutments the work would be started.

The neglect of these bridges has been more than a shame and disgrace and the party responsible for the three year delay in the building of these bridges should be indicted in the Clearfield County Courts for criminal negligence. The Board of Public Buildings and Grounds blames the neglect on Governor Spaul and the Governor "passes the buck" elsewhere.

Here's hoping the State authorities are at last awake to their responsibilities in this connection, but if we were inclined to wager, we wouldn't be afraid to bet the last suspender button on the back of our trousers that no bridge is built this year at either Leger Creek or Rollingstone.

A MATTER OF FRANCHISE

The simplest way I know is to give everybody a drink and keep the ten dollars," laughed Ames.

"That's what I call a good sport," grinned Tub Warren. "What'll you have, gent?"

"First of all, Mr. Sumner will take his stock," suggested Ames, and the bartender made a clumsy salute which was sufficiently in the nature of an apology.

He went to the rusty little safe at the end of the bar and began to twist at the knob. Jerry Sumner also moved up to that end of the bar, and Ames followed him.

"You're a poor man now, I believe," said Ames.

"Hotten," agreed Jerry, preparing to be inebriated about it.

"Then I'll do you a favor," offered Ames confidentially. "This man is very rich, and rich men pay big prices for rare old papers like this to put in their collections. If he takes a fancy to these, charge him a good price for them."

Old Jerry's eyes contracted with aversion.

"How much do you say?" he hoarsely whispered. "Fifty dollars?"

"Nothing so cheap as that," he would not want them," warned Ames. "Charge him five hundred. Charge him a thousand!"

"Good God!" gasped old Jerry, and he held to the bar rail while he strove to comprehend those awe-inspiring figures.

"Here's your stock, Jerry," panted the bartender, rising from the safe, and he threw an age-blackened bundle of oily-looking papers on the bar.

"Why, they're on sheepskin parchment," wondered Ames, but Jerry did not hear him.

"How many shares were in the original company?" asked Dennison of Jerry, but Jerry was still in a trance.

"One hundred shares," Ames volunteered.

Dennison sighed with relief.

"They're all here," he counted up. "One certificate of sixty shares, one of twenty, three of five and five of one." He folded them in a neat little pile and affectionately laid on top of them their grubby old string. "How much will you take for these, Mr. Sumner?"

Jerry Sumner came out of his trance. His jaw dropped so that he could hardly talk. "Three times," he tried to talk before he finally made it.

"Two-two—two thousand dollars!" he gasped.

Tom Dennison cast one twinkling glance at Ames, and quietly produced his checkbook and a fountain pen. Then, and not until then, old Jerry Sumner sat down, in a grimy huddled heap, and his face went pale.

"Now, if you don't mind, we'll hunt up my lawyer and get a proper witness to this transaction," suggested Dennison, looking at his watch.

"Certainly," assented Jerry Sumner, rising, with five years of youth in his veins. "I want to get out of this dump, anyhow," and he looked with disdain on his long-time home.

CHAPTER IV

There was a sudden tremendous activity on Baltimore avenue, up Irving road past the cemetery, an activity which began at Monument square and ended on Houston pike at the city limit line. From every source at his command, Tom Dennison brought iron rails, and wooden ties, and an army of men with picks and shovels. By ten o'clock they had torn into the roadway, from one end of the route to the other, and the picks were working into the asphalt like steam riveters, when Bill Cracken drove down from his late breakfast.

"Here, what's all this about?" demanded Bill, as he stopped at the crossing.

Not a workman wavered, and Bill Cracken, who kept earnest track of every inch of paving or sewer contract, for well-founded commercial reasons of his own, jumped out of his car and brought a busy Italian up by the shoulder.

"I say, what is this job?" he rumbled.

"Ask a boss!" shrieked the moist little Italian and, jerking away, he slammed his pick into the asphalt.

That seeming to be reasonable advice, Bill Cracken, deserting his car, strode up the street until he found, in the act of giving some directions to a foreman, a tall, black-haired young man in an envably-fitting gray business suit.

"Are you the boss of the outfit?" Cracken unceremoniously demanded.

"Well, in a way," returned John Ames, pleasantly. "I'm representing the Midstate Interurban company. We're running a line in to Monument square."

"The devil you are!" snapped big Bill, becoming doubly top-sid.

"Where's your permit?"

"We don't need any," Ames took the trouble to explain. "Mr. Dennison is working under the original franchise of the Houston Pike Stage Coach company."

Two days later, there were signs all up and down Baltimore avenue and Irving road. These signs, painted on long wooden trussels, said, "Street closed," and wagons began to deliver sewer pipe along the route.

Bill Cracken was well satisfied, as the last week of the franchise was on.

There was no miracle by which Tom Dennison could now finish his track in time to have an electric car, or even a horse car, running by the last day of the stage coach franchise. If Tom Dennison or his tall lieutenant worried they did not show it. They had beaten the injunction fight in the beginning. They had secured ground for a terminal station right on Monument square and were building it. They were constructing their entering line right down Houston pike to the city limit, and betrayed a serene confidence, which Bill Cracken characterized as a huge bluff, although at the same time he had his lawyers examining that old franchise for days on end, under the eyes of the court guardians.

Two days before the expiration of his franchise, Tom Dennison suddenly called off all of his workmen, and even stopped the construction of his terminal building. Bill Cracken met Dennison in the Commercial club, at noon of that day.

"Well, I see you got enough of it," he taunted.

"What's the use?" returned Dennison, with a shrug of his shoulders. "I put up a game enough fight, but there was no possible chance to get those tracks down before day after tomorrow."

"I don't call it a game fight," chuckled Cracken, leaning with his back to the wall. "I call it a fool fight. Nobody ever harpooned me! Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll make you that same old proposition, and we'll finish your line down Irving road and Baltimore avenue."

"Wait till next week," returned Dennison. "I'm all tired out, and my men are nearly dead. This has cost me a lot of money, Bill."

"The city's been digging the sewer," retorted Bill Cracken, with a diagonal smile.

CHAPTER V

Plainsberg blinked its eyes in annoyance. Into the peace and quiet which had prevailed on Irving road and Baltimore avenue for two days there suddenly intruded the renewed activities of scraping and shoveling.

This began at about three o'clock in the morning, and eleven of his trusty lieutenants telephoned to Bill Cracken within a half hour after the work began. In revenge for being dispatched at that unearthly hour, Bill Cracken turned out the mayo, the chief of police, the city prosecutor and the three lawyers, but they did not see much to be done. The men were only shoveling dirt from the center of the street, and by the time a hasty junction was secured, though no one knew why they were getting it, the men had quit.

Bill Cracken himself was downtown when the crew left the work, and, standing at the turning of Irving road into Baltimore avenue, he was pondering heavily on his new development.

When a strange procession came down from Houston pike. It looked like an army at first, an army of half a thousand workmen, with their shovels over their shoulders, and, right in the midst of it, drove the strangest vehicle which Plainsberg had seen in many a year!

It was one of the old green coaches of the Houston Pike stage line, rattling and creaking and groaning at every inch of its rheumatic progress, and high on the driver's seat, cranking his whip with all his feeble strength, sat purple-faced old Jerry Sumner!

One block up the street the procession stopped, and a passenger, who had been strangely watching Bill Cracken, stepped out of the shadow of a tree and mounted the coach. He climbed to one of the top seats, and quite ostentatiously handed Jerry Sumner a coin. The passenger was John Ames.

Old Jerry cracked his whip, and the procession moved on. Three blocks further down the coach stopped again, and another passenger mounted. That one was Tom Dennison!

"Now, what in Texas does that mean?" blurted the city prosecutor.

"It means that I'm going to get me some advisers with brains, you boneheads!" blazed Bill Cracken. "I remember myself that old franchise reads that, if they are still in operation and carrying passengers at the time of the expiration of their franchise, they have the right to a renewal."

"They have to make a round trip to make it stick," suggested Cracken's most expensive lawyer.

"That's right!" agreed Cracken. "Chief, can't we disperse that riot?"

"We couldn't mass enough men," growled the chief. "I've been asking five years for more men."

"Then telephone a team in a hurry to pull a ten blow me down down Baltimore avenue!"

The chief shook his head, but he walked over to the police telephone box on the corner, unlocked it, and telephoned.

Five minutes later there was a wild clanging of fire bells, and the mad gallop of fire horses down all the avenues.

Bill Cracken and his advisers jumped in Bill's machine and hurried to the scene of conflagration. But that was an abortive attempt. The fire engines had clustered a block each way on Twelfth street, on both sides of Baltimore avenue, and the confusion was a failure, so far as Jerry Sumner was concerned. Baltimore avenue was

"Who is that young lady?" John Ames asked. "The one with the grayhound, and both his tone and his eyes had lost their bored expression."

"She's a live producer," the captain of the "bell-hops" enthusiastically stated. "She comes into the hotel every Wednesday afternoon for tea and she tips like the rest of the family. Her brother's the cleanest sport in town."

"Who is she?" the black-haired John Ames repeated with a snarl.

"It's Miss Greenwood," replied the mop-headed captain. "Say, she's the sweetest looking thing that comes into the Tyler Avenue hotel. Her old man used to bring her when she was just a little kid; but he's dead. He was a good sport, too."

"Are the Greenwoods in business?" and Ames watched the attractive girl until she was lost in the maze of fashionable shoppers.

"I should say so some!" bragged the captain, who was intense in his local patriotism. "Greenwood Square Hotel Auger company, half a million dollars. How do you like the town?"

"A little better," acknowledged Ames. "I think I shall stay a while."

Chapter II.

"Have you any square-hole augers?" asked Ames, in the leading hardware store.

"Greenwood or Diggins?" asked the languid clerk in return.

"Which is the better?" Ames interestedly inquired.

"Not much difference," said the clerk, examining a fingernail. "Diggins' is a dollar cheaper, but it's lighter weight."

"I see," mused Ames. "Competitive proposition, eh? The Greenwood is manufactured here, I believe."

"Both," and the clerk looked wearily out of the window. "Would you like to look at them?"

"No, I think I'll take one of each," decided Ames. "You may send them too much torn up to permit the passage of fire engines, and they left a clear lane for Jerry's rickety old stage! Jerry drove it unmolested down to Monument square, while Bill Cracken, setting his wits to work, devised heavy barricades against the return trip.

He was a genius, after all, was Bill Cracken, for he executed a brilliant maneuver on Baltimore avenue between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. He remembered a water main valve which had been uncovered by the sewer excavations, and he emptied the city waterworks into that ditch until it had cut an utterly impassable moat across from curb to curb; then he sighed an oath of relief, and lit a cigar, and waited for the return of Jerry Sumner.

Jerry, however, did not return. Instead, he unhitched his horses in the very center of Monument square and turned them over to a workman to lead them away, and left his old coach standing there.

"It don't say nothing in that old franchise about a return trip," he explained to the admiring and sympathetic crowd. "It says 'operating and carrying passengers,' and I done it. Ain't that right, boss?" and he shook hands with Tom Dennison.

"That's right, Jerry," approved Tom Dennison, handing him his wages. "John, come out to the house to dinner tonight and celebrate."

"Thanks," drawled John, as they edged out of the crowd. "I'm not sure that I can make it tonight, however." He had been out to the Dennison house to dinner twice in the past three weeks, and the amusement rather bored him.

"I'm sorry," regretted Dennison. "My daughter Miriam is coming home today, and I'd like to have you meet her."

"I think I can make it," John hastily remarked.

CHAPTER VI

The Dennison house was a beautiful place, and Mrs. Dennison was as charming a hostess as her husband was a hospitable host, and Miriam Dennison was a dainty and vivacious girl. Indeed, Ames thought, as he sat across the table from her, he had never seen one more beautiful. He had remained a month in this town to gain the privilege of raising Miriam Dennison on frank terms, to gain the privileges of looking frankly and freely into the depths of her eyes and possibly to reach there the end of his roving search.

"You mustn't mind if mother and I stare at you," laughed Miriam. "Father has talked of you so much today that he is to blame if we should happen to seem rude."

"I don't blame you myself," declared Tom Dennison. "John's a marvel. I'm going to adopt him!"

"That's very kind of you," returned John amiably. "You'll have a wayward son, though. You'll scarcely ever know where I am."

"Nonsense!" laughed Tom Dennison. "You're going to stay right here and take an important part in my traction business."

"No," he smilingly refused, and Tom Dennison, who knew men, caught the flimsy in his tone. "No, I must move on."

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

IT IS interesting to observe to what lengths Nash goes in painstaking shop practice, because it bears directly upon the quality that has earned Nash cars their nation-wide esteem.

To make certain that Nash cylinders are absolutely true, a stream of cold water is circulated through the water jackets as the barrels are machined. This prevents heat being generated by the operation of machining, and it is heat that expands the cylinder and causes the variations in size which distinguish inferior cylinders from Nash cylinders.

Lavish Hindu Display. The glories of the grand mogul when he reigned in Delhi are fact, not fable. There you may still see his palace with the Pearl mosque and the Divan-i-Khas or Hall of Audience, the roof of which was once silver foliage, encrusted with gold, and valued by Tavernier, the French Jeweler, at 27,000,000 francs. In Delhi, too, you would have found the Throne of the Two Peacocks, whose expanded tails were illuminated with sapphires, rubies, emeralds, pearls and other precious stones of appropriate colors; a throne of gold, based on six golden and jeweled feet. NO OLD WOMEN NOWADAYS

Modern dress, hair dressers, facial experts and cosmetics all combine to keep women of all ages young and attractive in appearance. Not until the telltale wrinkles become so deep the figure stoops, or some ailment or weakness develops to drag a woman down does she really look her age. Every woman owes it to herself, and her family to keep herself young in appearance, and happy. When head aches, backache or "the blues" develop or when a woman reaches the trying age from forty-five to fifty, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to keep her in health as it has so many other women whose letters we are continually publishing in this paper.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Coming To Clearfield May 4th

Billboards and store windows are now heralding the glad tidings of the coming of the majestic Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus on May 4. Advance Car No. 1 has already been here and according to the men in charge the exhibition this year will mark an epoch in trained animal feats and equestrian novelties.

The trained animal program has received much attention this season, as it is the prominent portion of the exhibition. Skilled trainers devoted the winter months to the teaching of new feats to the animals at winter headquarters in West Baden, Ind., and have perfected an astonishing program, which is promised to introduce feats never accomplished before.

In the three big rings features of European fame and headliner acts of America are billed. Leading clowns have been contracted and much overtime was consumed in preparing new pantomimic stunts assured to bring laughter from all. A jazz band composed of these mimics is only one of the many features.

A menagerie containing practically a specimen of every living animal today is being carried. It is said to be attracting wide spread attention, being beneficial from an educational viewpoint, as well as interesting. The doors are opened one hour before every performance so that spectators may enjoy a thorough visit through this menagerie.

For the convenience of patrons a downtown ticket office will be open during the visit of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus at Stewart Drug Store.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF MUST TAKE SECOND PLACE FOR SOLDIER'S BONUS SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE DECIDES

Chairman McCumber Expected To Get His Committee To Work On The Bill Today, As Senators Feel Issue Should Be Squarely Met.

DEMOCRATS READY TO FIGHT TARIFF

Washington, D. C., April 21.—The Republican tariff bill will be shoved aside to clear the way for the soldier bonus, Senator McCumber, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, announced today. McCumber expected to get the committee to work on the bonus bill today. A strong feeling was manifesting itself today among Republican Senators that the Senate ought to meet squarely the question of a cash bonus. Senator Lenroot and others have begun advocating simplification of the problem by the issuance of Treasury certificates. According to McCumber there will be no more delay or hesitation.

Tariff discussion begun yesterday was resumed today with Senator Simmons, the Democratic leader, prepared to begin his fight against the measure.

RUSSIA WILL RECOGNIZE PRE-WAR DEBTS CONDITIONED UPON RECOGNITION BY ALLIED POWERS, CONFERENCE IS TOLD

Genoa, Italy, April 21.—Russia has recognized her pre-war debts conditional upon de jure recognition of the Soviet government by the Allies. This was Russia's reply to the Allied experts' proposals delivered by the Soviet delegation. Russia's reply, which was considered for over a week, covered twenty type-written pages. General acceptance of the terms laid down by the Allied experts covered the first half page of the document and the remainder of the test was argumentative.

Rome, Italy, April 21.—Soviet representatives have signed a treaty with the Vatican permitting Jesuits and Catholic sisterhoods to enter Russia and carry out educational work. This was interpreted as the first move to bring the Orthodox Russian Church into the Catholic Church.

WHITE SLAVERS PLY NEFARIOUS TRADE IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, N. Y., April 21.—The third kidnapping of a young girl within a week came to light today. Warnings have been sent out of wide spread operations of white slavers. Minnie Zarrinbock aged 16, who was rescued today from a gang who have kept her without a vestige of clothing, plying her with drugs, told the police she had been kidnapped while on an errand, by a man who dragged her into a taxicab. Her captor, William Wissinger, was in bed when the police broke into the room where he was keeping the girl captive. Another girl was dragged into a hall-way by five men, but was afterward rescued.

Shot Man For Groundhog And Gets 2 Years In Jail

Williamsport, April 20.—Geo. W. Sweeley, of Nisbet, found guilty at the December sessions of criminal court on the charge of shooting C. W. Carroll, also of Nisbet, in mistake for game, upon appearing before Judge Harvey W. Whitehead yesterday was ordered to pay $500 to the personal representative of Mr. Carroll (the cost of prosecution and undergo imprisonment in the county jail for a period of two years.

Teh court further ordered that Mr Sweeley be not permitted to hunt in this commonwealth for a period, of ten years from the date of his conviction, November 28, 1921. Charles W. Carroll was shot on the afternoon of August 22, 1921, by Mr. Sweeley, who was berry picking and also hunting for groundhogs. The defendant thought he saw a groundhog a short distance away and fired. Later he discovered that he had shot Mr. Carroll, killing him instantly. The unfortunate man was found to be trapping groundhogs at the time.

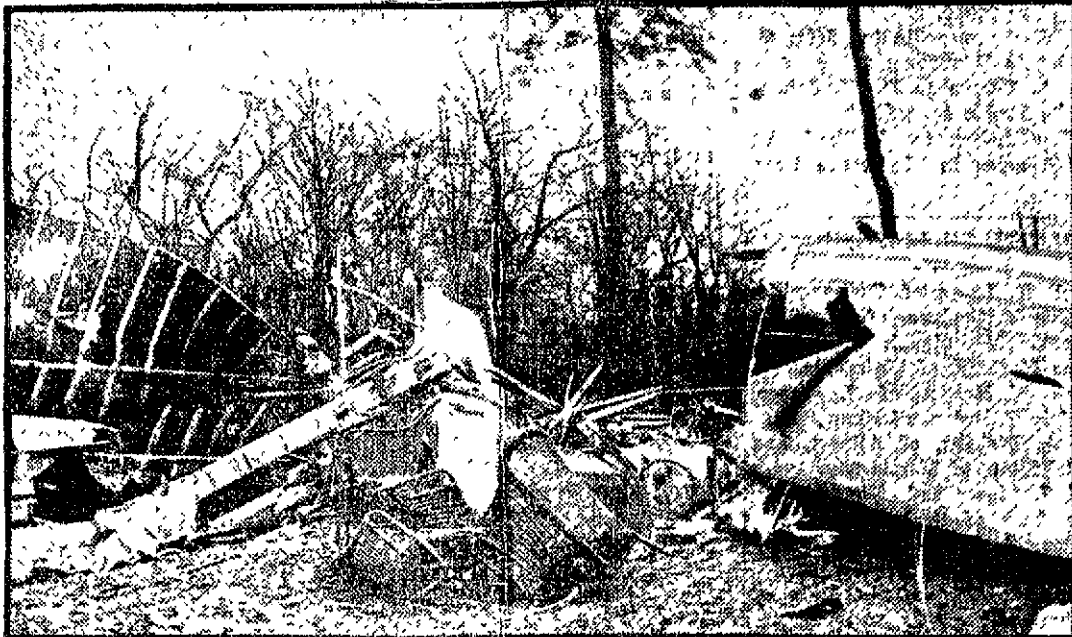

COAL STRIKE SLOWS UP BIG STEEL MILLS

Connellsville, Pa., April 21.—With coke production dropping at the rate of 25,000 tons per week the crippled steel industry in the Pittsburgh district today faced further shutdowns. Their stocks of coke eaten up and unwilling to pay the heavy price of $5.50 a ton, a number of plants are planning to bank their blast furnaces Saturday. Production has dwindled to 45,000 tons a week compared to 52,000 on April 1st.

CAMBRIA LABOR LEADER ENDORSES ALTER FOR GOV.

Harrisburg, April 20.—James Dunn of Nanty-Glo, Cambria county, a former miner and member of the legislature from Cambria county during the 1911 session, today called attention to the fact that the first speech delivered before a Pennsylvania legislature on behalf of workmen's compensation was that of George E. Alter, on May 16, 1911. Mr. Alter who is now candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Pennsylvania, was a member of the house during the 1909, 1911 and 1913 sessions. He was Speaker of the House during the 1917 session.

"I sponsored the Workmen's Compensation bill passed by the House in 1911," said Mr. Dunn today "I was aided by Mr. Alter in getting the measure into shape. It was revolutionary in Pennsylvania, and was vigorously attacked. It passed first and second readings with little difficulty, however, and was made a special order for consideration at noon on Tuesday, May 16, 1911. At that time V. Gilpin Robinson of Delaware county took the floor against it. I made brief reply to him, as did John R. K. Scott, of Philadelphia; and then Mr. Alter made the first speech ever delivered in the Pennsylvania assembly on behalf of this legislation. That his effort for the measure was successful is evidenced by the fact that on final passage the vote was 112 ayes to 52 nays. The bill then went to the State Senate, where it died in committee.

"Mr. Alter's kindness to me during that period, and the great interest he manifested on behalf of the people of Pennsylvania through his taking up this compensation measure, naturally result in my doing everything in my power to secure his nomination. The present attorney general displayed ability and bigness of heart in such degree that I cannot do otherwise than work for his success. His legislative record will show that at all times he was for those measures which were for the benefit of labor."

Mr. Dunn at this time is a jury commissioner for Cambria county. He is very well known among the bituminous coal miners of Cambria, Clearfield, Indiana and Jefferson counties.

BELFAST IS AGAIN SCENE OF SHOOTING; REBELS ACTIVE AGAIN

Belfast, Ireland, April 21.—Hundreds of gunmen participated in street battles during the worst night of terror Belfast has known for months. The fighting last night and early today in the Ballymacarrett district was particularly severe. Gangsters came boldly into the streets and were shot by rival bands from roofs. Seventeen persons were wounded.

Dublin, Ireland, April 21.—Irish Republican rebels have captured the British wireless station at Bunbeg, in Donegal, in the North of Ireland, according to a report from London today. The British naval men operating the wireless station were reported to have been ejected.

The Way Of A Maid With A Man Is Exasperating

Paris, France, April 21.—Mary Louisa Baler four times since arriving here has changed her mind about whether and when she will marry Albert McCormick. This was the answer furnished today by Viscount Janze, who spoke for Miss Baker, to questions as to what she had decided. The mystery of the Chicago girl's romance deepens every hour. Al-lister McCormick is in Paris today reading reporters and buying an automobile. Miss Baker was said by Viscount Janze to be touring France with his former maid. He said he did not know where they were. A maid at the Janze residence said Viscount Janze was at home.

CANDIDATE ALTER ALTERED HIS PLANS

Attorney General Alter, organization candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, who was scheduled to pay Clearfield a visit this evening, was forced to deny himself the pleasure of a trip into our County at this time on account of the fact that he had to go to Philadelphia from Allentown to appear for the State at the argument of an important case before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court now in session in the Quaker City.

Candidate Alter will visit Clearfield voters at a later day.

"NO GAME; SNOW!" IS PITTSBURGH STORY

Pittsburg, Pa., April 21.—The game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cards was postponed today on account of snow. Two and one half inches of snow fell during the night.

WILL PRINT THE BALLOTS

The ballots for the primary election in Clearfield county this year will be printed at the office of the Raftman's Journal. The contract for the printing was awarded the Journal office by the County Commissioners this morning at their bid of $541, which was the lowest out of four received.

ROTARIANS HAVE LADIES' NIGHT WITH A FINE PROGRAM

Ladies night at the Clearfield Rotary Club attracted about one hundred Rotarians and guests to the regular weekly meeting of the organization which was held at the Hotel Dimeling last evening. The Entertainment Committee had an especially fine program prepared for the occasion and the evening was a very enjoyable one.

President Ward O. Wilson was Master of ceremonies and managed to get 100 per cent of fun out of every situation.

In addition to the regular Rotary singing a special musical program was given. Mrs. E. C. Reeve, on costume, sang an aria from the Mikado, with most pleasing effect, while a sextette of Rotary Anne's composed of Mrs. Philip B. Reed, Mrs. Reeve, Mrs. Howard Stewart, Mrs. John Gearhart, Miss Madeline Porter and Mrs. Harry Boulton, garbed in gingham and sunbonnets, made a real hit with their snappy little songs. They essayed a little "barber shop" harmony during which the assemblage was given opportunity to make ocular comparison of the merits of Herpicide and Bare to Hair. This latter stunt was real captivating and brought forth very hearty applause.

Little Miss Miriam Porter, in black face, made the announcements and got a "great hand" for a couple of cute and pointed little recitations.

Madeline Porter's reciting of "Daddy's Story After Joining Rotary" also came in for much merited praise.

Bruce "took a piker" of the gang and ended up for one of those "Bar-num was Right" stunts of several weeks ago. He was assisted by "Alfred J. Oak," otherwise Fred Phillips, an Osceola photographer.

President Wilson announced that the election of officers would be held at the meeting on Thursday of next week and invited all the members to go to Philipsburg on Tuesday next and assist in the institution of the Philipsburg Rotary Club.

ANOTHER JACK THE RIPPER MURDER

Chicago, Ill., April 21.—The nude body of a beautiful blonde woman, about thirty years of age, was found in a van moving van on the South Side here today. The body was covered with bruises. The woman had been dead only a few hours. A bloody spot on a door step just a few blocks from where the body was found led the police to believe that it had been dragged out before daybreak today.

New York, N. Y., April 21.—The Police today were without an angible clue in the second Jewish murder of a woman to occur in New York with in two weeks. Mrs. Elizabeth Brodowitzky was found slain and her body mangled almost beyond recognition in the coal bin of a fan apartment. Mrs. Brodowitzky's body was found by her husband when she failed to prepare his evening meal.

Miss Helen Cole, of Pittsburgh, is spending her Easter vacation with relatives in Clearfield.

THIRTY THOUSAND INHABITANTS OF MONASTIR AND VICINITY HOMELESS AS RESULT OF MUNITIONS EXPLOSION

London, England, April 21.—Thirty thousand inhabitants of Monastir and vicinity are reported homeless today as the result of a terrific explosion of a munitions train which caused the death of hundreds of soldiers and many children.

The explosion was at first reported as having occurred at Salonika. Later dispatches from Belgrade showed it took place along the railroad running into Monastir. Part of the city is still burning and, owing to the danger from shells and other explosives, thousands of inhabitants have sought refuge in the woods.

Pennsy Managers Continue Attempt To Bring Down Wages

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—Renewing the movement to reduce wages of train service employees general Managers of the Pennsylvania Railroad conferred here today with representatives of the Big Four Brotherhoods. A similar conference held two weeks ago in Philadelphia was without result. The Pennsy management it was reported, seeks to bring about the reduction by changes in working conditions and elimination of time and half time for over time.

STORY TELLING FOR KIDDIES SATURDAY

A story telling hour for the children of the Market Street school and their younger brothers and sisters will be held in the school building at ten o'clock this Saturday morning by a number of women who have formed a Story Telling Club as part of the activities of Clearfield Community Service. Mrs. H. W. Stewart is acting as Chairman of the group which includes a number of those who heard the talks Mrs. Hanley of Community Service gave on the subject a week or so ago. It is hoped that the number interested will be increased, so that the story telling may become an important part of the playground program this summer. It is planned to have these story telling hours each Saturday morning during the spring for the children of each of the grade schools in succession.

DOGS ARE RUNNING DEER ALONG CREEK

H. L. Shaffer, who is employed at the Eyre Collieries on the Owens Farm, near Clearfield Creek, informed the Progress that he saw three dogs chasing a doe, heavy with fawn, in the woods above the mine opening last night. Mr. Shaffer said he endeavored to head the dogs off and succeeded in driving them away from their quarry for a few minutes but they circled him and again took up the trail and could be heard chasing the deer over hill and dale long into the night. One of the dogs was a huge yellow collie, while the others were black and white and smaller dogs.

There are several deer located in the woods along the creek and dogs have been reported chasing them several times recently and State Game Warden Davis has been asked to go out and kill the dogs if possible and prosecute the owners to the limit. There is a fine of $25 per day for the owner of any dog caught running deer and if a few careless dog owners are made to pay the penalty in addition to having their dogs killed, we may be spared the necessity of recording such happenings as the above.

CHERRY TREE HAS 3 INCHES OF SNOW

The "freeze" of last night is expected to put the "cleaner" on the fruit in this section. The thermometer hereabouts registered 32 degrees at 7:30 this morning. A traveler from the upriver country who came to town on the morning New York Central train reported three inches of snow at Cherrytree.

Play Leaders' Party At High School Last Evening Was Success

The first session of the play leaders institute held in the High School gymnasium by Clearfield Community Service last evening was a great success. The program was put on as a play party and the games actually played by all who were present, and it was a revelation to those who have been thinking that dancing is the only way to have a good time, to watch the excitement and listen to the shouts of the men and women, and boys and girls, all playing together in an old fashioned or newly invented game. The next session of the course will be held on Saturday evening, beginning promptly at 7:30 and closing promptly at 9. They afford an opportunity to learn how to lead games, a valuable social asset, and also to spend a thoroughly enjoyable and rather novel evening.

FARM BUREAU BULLETIN

Fruit blossom time is the best to start beekeeping. The first suggestion to beginners according to the County Agent Sterrett is to secure good literature and read up on the subject before purchasing bees. The American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Ill., and Gleanings in Bee Culture, Medina, O., are bee journals that are helpful, and the United States Department of Agriculture issues a large number of bulletins in bee keeping that may be secured by writing for them.

Professor George H. Rea, the extension bee specialist at the Pennsylvania State College says that the beginner should use the regular ten framed Langstroth hive, which can be obtained from any bee supply manufacturer. The frames should be well wired and with full sheets of comb foundation. The hive can be best filled now by placing it with a beekeeper who will agree to have a swarm into it.

Only Italian bees are worthy of attention and most breeders have them. The beginner had best produce comb honey. For this purpose the 4 by 5 inch, or the 4 1/4 by 4 1/4 inch section with fence separators are best. Special information on bee problems can be obtained from the college through the county agent.

The storage of eggs in the season of high egg production, when low prices prevail, for use during the season of low production with high prices is entirely practical and economical for home consumption. The most satisfactory preservative is water glass, which can be obtained at most stores. The equipment necessary is sufficient containers to hold the eggs and still allow for the liquid to cover them to a depth of about two inches. Use strictly fresh, infertile eggs. Place them in the containers, and then pour in the liquid. Water glass solution is usually prepared by using one part water glass to nine parts water. Keeping this in a cool dry place is advised. A four gallon crock will easily contain about four dozen eggs. Approximately eight quarts of the liquid will be necessary to properly preserve the eggs.

These eggs can be very satisfactorily used for any method of cooking, except that when they are boiled for table use, it is advisable to prick the large end of the egg so that the air may escape. Sometime the white of the egg will take on a pinkish cast which is entirely harmless for eatable purposes. Often times also the liquid will turn white and a gelatinous material stick to the eggs which is easily washed off. This is entirely harmless. It should be remembered, however, that the preserving solution is good for one year only.

Further information on this subject can be obtained at the Farm Bureau Office or the Poultry Extension Department, State College, Pa.

There is no field crop grown in Pennsylvania which responds with greater profits to liberal applications of commercial fertilizers than do potatoes. In fact, liberal applications of commercial fertilizers, manure or both, are essential as good culture, good disease free seed, or spraying. The potato is a weak feeder and for the best results ready available plant food must be supplied in abundance. For that reason potatoes should never be planted on poor soil. The come never reaching perfect on in both quality and in yield on well drained fertile shale or loam soils, having a good clover sod with a coat of manure plowed down in late fall or early spring.

Under such conditions 500 to 800 pounds of acid phosphate per acre should be applied, say County Agent Sterrett. Where potatoes follow a well manured timothy sod or well manured corn ground, 200 to 1200 pounds per acre of a 3-12 mixture should be applied. If a clover sod not manured is turned down, then it becomes necessary to use potash, and 800 to 1000 pounds of a 3-12-4 mixture is used. If the soil is not naturally fertile, the percentage of ammonia may be increased up to four per cent. Potatoes following timothy should receive at least 1000 to 1500 pounds of a 4-10-4 or 6 mixture.

When the effect on the potato crop only is considered it makes little difference whether the fertilizer is all applied in the row or half put in the row and the other half broadcast. When the crop following potatoes is considered it is better to put half in the row and broadcast the other half. The broadcasting may be done either before or after the potatoes are planted.

When planting by hand, the best plan is to broadcast all either before or after planting. Experiments have not shown any advantage in making light applications at frequent intervals during the growing season.

"Canadian thistles can be eradicated if the soil they occupy can be made to grow alfalfa successfully," County Agent Sterrett says to Clearfield County farmers who are bothered with this weed. The soil must be well limed for tile and well drained before the alfalfa will make proper growth. The frequent cuttings and the character of the alfalfa roots will crowd out the weeds.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womanhood. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. of any of his remedies, or write for free medical advice.

NO WONDER

An Irishman coming out of ether in the ward after an operation exclaimed audibly: "Thank God That is over!"

"Don't be too sure" said the man in the next bed "they left a sponge in me and had to cut me open again."

And the patient on the other side said, "Why, they had to open me too, to find one of their instruments."

Just then the surgeon who had operated on the Irishman stuck his head in the door and said:

"Has anybody seen my hat?"

Pat fainted.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

This is a queer old world we live in; it is full of queer happenings and queer people. Being of an inquisitive turn of mind and desiring to get a line on what our Clearfield county neighbors are doing, we dropped into the Court House yesterday afternoon and after examining the records in the different offices found that since the first of the year 202 Clearfield county fellows decided to get married and secured the legal permit to wed the woman of their choice.

Then while these fellows were running their necks into the matrimonial yoke, the divorce court records disclosed that 22 disillusioned married fellows had appealed to the court to be divorced.

A visit to the Sheriff's office further disclosed that no less than 77 residents of the County had got themselves into jail since the first of the year, while the County Treasurer's books showed that 2200 other fellows over 21 years of age had invested $1.10 each in a license to fish for trout.

That a n industrial railway banking combination," headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., controls the National railroads, coal mines, banks, steel and other industries, was the charge made by W. Jett Lauck, economist for the American Federation of Labor, before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which is making a general railroad survey. He declared financiers rather than operating officials were responsible for "the present plight of the railroads," and accused them of trying to "deflate" railroad as well as other labor.

"This combine exercises a power over the economic destiny of the United States. It deflated the farmers and then undertook to deflate labor. It is pointed out that this local capitalist or credit group has deliberately maintained high prices of steel, coal, cement and other basic materials and that railroads financed by the same interests have refused to place orders for plant maintenance.

The consequences of the general policy practiced by every branch of the giant combination, beginning with the restriction of bank credit itself, have clamped a brake, so to speak, upon a 11 industry and have intensified unemployment designed in the general policy of the capital combination.

Secretary of the Treasury Andy Mellon says the United States government will face a deficit of not less than $484,000,000 at the end of the present fiscal year or on July 1, 1922. It may be much more than that amount too, Andy says.

That treaty between the Russians and Germany appears to be raising the devil over at Genoa. It would of course make no difference to Americans were we represented there, because the Russ and the German only did what America and Germany accomplished in our separate treaty with Germany. Why the howl now?

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, head of Pennsylvania's Department of Education, evidently does not believe rouge dabbling girls will be "frightful, fat and forty" some day. Here is Finegan's recently expressed view of the flapper and her works:

"Girls in Pennsylvania schools can wear knickers to school so far as I am concerned," Finegan says, "They can use a bit of rouge if their mothers don't object. So long as they get their lessons and attend school regularly we have nothing to say."

"The very people who are filling the newspapers with columns of condemnation about the younger set are the people who could look back one or two generations and remember things done then that would make our present youngsters blush.

"There always were a certain number of girls who smoked cigarettes in boarding school and of boys who thought it looked grown-up to drink. 'Rouge' isn't a creation of the past few years—it always was used and always will be."

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chaney of Altoona, a daughter, Mrs. Chaney is staying with her sister Mrs. R. F. Brown, on 4th street.

WILL BUILD BRIDGE AT ROLLING STONE COMING SUMMER

County Commissioner T. R. Weimer returned last evening from Harrisburg, where he had attended the opening of the bids for the building of improved roads in Clearfield County. Mr. Weimer told The Progress morning that while in Harrisburg he visited the Committee on Buildings and Grounds and took up with them the matter of the building of the Rolling Stone and Deep Creek bridges over the Susquehanna River. He said he was given assurance that the Rollingstone bridge would be built the coming summer, and that as soon as the water fell sufficiently to allow an examination of the foundations of the piers and abutments the work would be started.

The neglect of these bridges has been more than a shame and disgrace and the party responsible for the three year delay in the building of these bridges should be indicted in the Clearfield County Courts for criminal negligence. The Board of Public Buildings and Grounds blames the neglect on Governor Spaul and the Governor "passes the buck" elsewhere.

Here's hoping the State authorities are at last awake to their responsibilities in this connection, but if we were inclined to wager, we wouldn't be afraid to bet the last suspender button on the back of our trousers that no bridge is built this year at either Deep Creek or Rollingstone.

Down with the "Politicians" and their pernicious works.

Evicting Strikers In Colorado And Utah

Indianapolis, Ind., April 21.—Mine owners in Colorado and Utah are evicting employees from company owned homes as soon as they join the strike, reports to United Mine Workers headquarters stated today. Hundreds of non-union miners in these two states are becoming United Mine Workers daily, William Greene, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Mine Workers said. Sixty local unions were formed yesterday in various open shop fields scattered over the country, according to Greene.

BRUTAL SLAYER GETS SECOND DEGREE

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21.—The jury today found Walter Bruce, a negro, guilty of murder in the second degree in connection with the slaying of his wife Helen. Bruce was alleged to have caught his wife by the hair, bending her head back until the throat was exposed and then almost decapitating her with a razor. It was said that the spinal column was the only support left the head every muscle and artery having been severed.

OBITUARY

MRS. T. L. WAY

Our community was shocked to learn of the death of Mrs. T. L. Way one of Pike Township's lifelong residents, being born and living most all her life in the old homestead.

She was the youngest daughter of Thomas and Ruth Anna Walker Bloom, born May 16, 1861, died April 9, 1922. She was married to T. Lawrence Way, Nov. 22, 1882 and to this union five children were born; Ruth Anna, wife of James Irwin; Mabel, wife of Monroe Bloom; L. Hugh at home; Edith, wife of Earl McFadden; David Elmer who preceded his mother to the Great Beyond April 11, 1900 and was laid to rest just 22 years ago the same day.

Her passing away will be keenly felt by the family and a host of friends, as she was always ready to render assistance in time of sickness or need. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of this place and exemplified the principles of true Christian character in her walks in life, trusting to God to relieve her of her suffering and referring to the departing of this life as Rest, Sweet Rest. She was a charter member of Susquehanna Grange No. 1145, also a member of the County and State Grange and also a member of our local W. C. T. U. in which she took an active interest when her health would permit. She is survived by her husband and four children and one sister, Mrs. Lydia L. Kester.

Funeral services were held from her late residence Wednesday, 2 P. M., Rev. E. D. Parkhill of Lock Haven, a former pastor, officiating. Interment in the Fairview Cemetery.

Our Mother now has left us. The voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our home which never can be filled.

'Tis ours to miss thee all these years
And tender memories of thee
Keep
Thine in the Lord to rest for so—
He giveth his sweet sleep.

MRS. JOHN R. CONFER

Mrs. Sophia D. Confer, wife of John R. Confer, died at the family home on Dorey street Clearfield, at 3:30 Sunday evening, April 16, 1922, at the age of 65 years, 5 months 5 days. Nevertheless her demise was very sudden, as she had been across the street to her daughter at 5 o'clock the same evening.

Mrs. Confer's maiden name was Sophia D. Viehdorfer and she was born November 11, 1856 at Moshannon, Centre county, living there until 19 years ago.

She married John R. Confer, of Hillsburg, May 26, 1881, who with sons and 2 daughters survive. The children are Mrs. Maude Holt and Roy Confer of Clearfield; Mrs. Virginia Traffus, Phillipsburg, LeLaune at home.

A MATTER OF FRANCHISE

The simplest way I know is to give everybody a drink and keep the ten dollars," laughed Ames.

"That's what I call a good sport," grinned Tub Warren. "What'll you have, gent?"

"First of all, Mr. Sumner will take his stock," suggested Ames, and the bartender made a clumsy salute which was sufficiently in the nature of an apology.

He went to the rusty little safe at the end of the bar and began to twist at the knob. Jerry Sumner also moved up to that end of the bar, and Ames followed him.

"You're a poor man now, I believe," said Ames.

"Hotten," agreed Jerry, preparing to be inebriated about it.

"Then I'll do you a favor," offered Ames confidentially. "This man is very rich, and rich men pay big prices for rare old papers like this to put in their collections. If he takes a fancy to these, charge him a good price for them."

Old Jerry's eyes contracted with aversion.

"How much do you say?" he hoarsely whispered. "Fifty dollars?"

"Nothing so cheap as that," he would not want them," warned Ames. "Charge him five hundred. Charge him a thousand!"

"Good God!" gasped old Jerry, and he held to the bar rail while he strove to comprehend those awe-inspiring figures.

"Here's your stock, Jerry," panted the bartender, rising from the safe, and he threw an age-blackened bundle of oily-looking papers on the bar.

"Why, they're on sheepskin parchment," wondered Ames, but Jerry did not hear him.

"How many shares were in the original company?" asked Dennison of Jerry, but Jerry was still in a trance. "One hundred shares," Ames volunteered.

Dennison sighed with relief. "They're all here," he counted up. "One certificate of sixty shares, one of twenty, three of five and five of one." He folded them in a neat little pile and affectionately laid on top of them their grimy old string. "How much will you take for these, Mr. Sumner?"

Jerry Sumner came out of his trance. His jaw dropped so that he could hardly talk. "Three times he tried to talk before he finally made it."

"Two-two—two thousand dollars!" he gasped.

Tom Dennison cast one twinkling glance at Ames, and quietly produced his checkbook and a fountain pen. Then, and not until then, old Jerry Sumner sat down, in a grimy huddled heap, and his face went pale.

"Now, if you don't mind, we'll hunt up my lawyer and get a proper witness to this transaction," suggested Dennison, looking at his watch.

"Certainly," assented Jerry Sumner, rising, with five years of youth in his veins. "I want to get out of this dump, anyhow," and he looked with disdain on his long-time home.

CHAPTER IV

There was a sudden tremendous activity on Baltimore avenue, up Irving road past the cemetery, an activity which began at Monument square and ended on Houston pike at the city limit line. From every source at his command, Tom Dennison brought iron rails, and wooden ties, and an army of men with picks and shovels. By ten o'clock they had torn into the roadway, from one end of the route to the other, and the picks were lying into the asphalt like steam riveters, when Bill Cracken drove down from his late breakfast.

"Here, what's all this about?" demanded Bill, as he stopped at the crossing.

Not a workman wavered, and Bill Cracken, who kept earnest track of every inch of paving or sewer contract, for well-founded commercial reasons of his own, jumped out of his car and brought a busy Italian up by the shoulder.

"I say, what is this job?" he rumbled.

"Ask a boss!" shrieked the moist little Italian and, jerking away, he slammed his pick into the asphalt.

That seeming to be reasonable advice, Bill Cracken, deserting his car, strode up the street until he found, in the act of giving some directions to a foreman, a tall, black-haired young man in an envably-fitting gray business suit.

"Are you the boss of the outfit?" Cracken unceremoniously demanded.

"Well, in a way," returned John Ames, pleasantly. "I'm representing the Midstate Interurban company. We're running a line in to Monument square."

"The devil you are!" snapped big Bill, becoming doubly top-sid.

"Where's your permit?"

"We don't need any," Ames took the trouble to explain. "Mr. Dennison is working under the original franchise of the Houston Pike Stage Coach company."

Two days later, there were signs all up and down Baltimore avenue and Irving road. These signs, painted on long wooden trussels, said, "Street closed," and wagons began to deliver sewer pipe along the route.

Bill Cracken was well satisfied, as the last week of the franchise was on,

There was no miracle by which Tom Dennison could now finish his track in time to have an electric car, or even a horse car, running by the last day of the stage coach franchise. If Tom Dennison or his tall lieutenant worried they did not show it. They had beaten the injunction fight in the beginning. They had secured ground for a terminal station right on Monument square and were building it. They were constructing their entering line right down Houston pike to the city limit, and betrayed a serene confidence, which Bill Cracken characterized as a huge bluff, although at the same time he had his lawyers examining that old franchise for days on end, under the eyes of the court guardians.

Two days before the expiration of his franchise, Tom Dennison suddenly called off all of his workmen, and even stopped the construction of his terminal building. Bill Cracken met Dennison in the Commercial club, at noon of that day.

"Well, I see you got enough of it," he taunted.

"What's the use?" returned Dennison, with a shrug of his shoulders. "I put up a game enough fight, but there was no possible chance to get those tracks down before day after tomorrow."

"I don't call it a game fight," chuckled Cracken, leaning with his best eye. "I call it a fool fight. Nobody ever harpooned me! Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll make you that same old proposition, and we'll finish your line down Irving road and Baltimore avenue."

"Wait till next week," returned Dennison. "I'm all tired out, and my men are nearly dead. This has cost me a lot of money, Bill."

"The city's been digging the sewer," retorted Bill Cracken, with a diagonal smile.

CHAPTER V

Plainsberg blinked its eyes in annoyance. Into the peace and quiet which had prevailed on Irving road and Baltimore avenue for two days there suddenly intruded the renewed activities of scraping and shoveling.

This began at about three o'clock in the morning, and eleven of his trusty lieutenants telephoned to Bill Cracken within a half hour after the work began. In revenge for being dispatched at that unearthly hour, Bill Cracken turned out the mayo, the chief of police, the city prosecutor and the three lawyers, but they did not see much to be done. The men were only shoveling dirt from the center of the street, and by the time a hasty junction was secured, though no one knew why they were getting it, the men had quit.

Bill Cracken himself was downtown when the crew left the work, and, standing at the turning of Irving road into Baltimore avenue, he was pondering heavily on his new development, when a strange procession came down from Houston pike. It looked like an army at first, an army of half a thousand workmen, with their shovels over their shoulders, and, right in the midst of it, drove the strangest vehicle which Plainsberg had seen in many a year!

It was one of the old green coaches of the Houston Pike stage line, rattling and creaking and groaning at every inch of its rheumatic progress, and high on the driver's seat, cracking his whip with all his feeble strength, sat purple-faced old Jerry Sumner!

One block up the street the procession stopped, and a passenger, who had been strangely watching Bill Cracken, stepped out of the shadow of a tree and mounted the coach. He climbed to one of the top seats, and quite ostentatiously handed Jerry Sumner a coin. The passenger was John Ames.

Old Jerry cracked his whip, and the procession moved on. Three blocks further down the coach stopped again, and another passenger mounted. That one was Tom Dennison!

"Now, what in Texas does that mean?" blurted the city prosecutor.

"It means that I'm going to get me some advisers with brains, you boneheads!" blazed Bill Cracken. "I remember myself that old franchise reads that, if they are still in operation and carrying passengers at the time of the expiration of their franchise, they have the right to a renewal."

"They have to make a round trip to make it stick," suggested Cracken's most expensive lawyer.

"That's right!" agreed Cracken. "Chief, can't we disperse that riot?"

"We couldn't mass enough men," growled the chief. "I've been asking five years for more men."

"Then telephone me in a hurry to put a tin blow me down down Baltimore avenue!"

The chief shook his head, but he walked over to the police telephone box on the corner, unlocked it, and telephoned.

Five minutes later there was a wild clanging of fire bells, and the mad gallop of fire horses down all the avenues.

Bill Cracken and his advisers jumped in Bill's machine and hurried to the scene of conflagration. But that was an abortive attempt. The fire engines had clustered a block each way on Twelfth street, on both sides of Baltimore avenue, and the confusion was a failure, so far as Jerry Sumner was concerned. Baltimore avenue was

"Who is that young lady?" John Ames asked. "The one with the grayhound, and both his tone and his eyes had lost their bored expression."

"She's a live producer," the captain of the "bell-hops" enthusiastically stated. "She comes into the hotel every Wednesday afternoon for tea and she tips like the rest of the family. Her brother's the cleanest sport in town."

"Who is she?" the black-haired John Ames repeated with a snarl.

"It's Miss Greenwood," replied the mop-headed captain. "Say, she's the sweetest looking thing that comes into the Tyler Avenue hotel. Her old man used to bring her when she was just a little kid; but he's dead. He was a good sport, too."

"Are the Greenwoods in business?" and Ames watched the attractive girl until she was lost in the maze of fashionable shoppers.

"I should say so some!" bragged the captain, who was intense in his local patriotism. "Greenwood Square Hotel Auger company, half a million dollars. How do you like the town?"

"A little better," acknowledged Ames. "I think I shall stay a while."

Chapter II.

"Have you any square-hole augers?" asked Ames, in the leading hardware store.

"Greenwood or Diggins?" asked the languid clerk in return.

"Which is the better?" Ames interestedly inquired.

"Not much difference," said the clerk, examining a fingernail. "Diggins' is a dollar cheaper, but it's lighter weight."

"I see," mused Ames. "Competitive proposition, eh? The Greenwood is manufactured here, I believe."

"Both," and the clerk looked wearily out of the window. "Would you like to look at them?"

"No, I think I'll take one of each," decided Ames. "You may send them

two blocks torn up to permit the passage of fire engines, and they left a clear lane for Jerry's rickety old stage! Jerry drove it unmolested down to Monument square, while Bill Cracken, setting his wits to work, devised heavy barricades against the return trip.

He was a genius, after all, was Bill Cracken, for he executed a brilliant maneuver on Baltimore avenue between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. He remembered a water main valve which had been uncovered by the sewer excavations, and he emptied the city waterworks into that ditch until it had cut an utterly impassable moat across from curb to curb; then he sighed an oath of relief, and lit a cigar, and waited for the return of Jerry Sumner.

Jerry, however, did not return. Instead, he unhitched his horses in the very center of Monument square and turned them over to a workman to lead them away, and left his old coach standing there.

"It don't say nothing in that old franchise about a return trip," he explained to the admiring and sympathetic crowd. "It says 'operating and carrying passengers,' and I done it. Ain't that right, boss?" and he shook hands with Tom Dennison.

"That's right, Jerry," approved Tom Dennison, handing him his wages. "John, come out to the house to dinner tonight and celebrate."

"Thanks," drawled John, as they edged out of the crowd. "I'm not sure that I can make it tonight, however." He had been out to the Dennison house to dinner twice in the past three weeks, and the amusement rather bored him.

"I'm sorry," regretted Dennison. "My daughter Miriam is coming home today, and I'd like to have you meet her."

"I think I can make it," John hastily remarked.

CHAPTER VI

The Dennison house was a beautiful place, and Mrs. Dennison was as charming a hostess as her husband was a hospitable host, and Miriam Dennison was a dainty and vivacious girl. Indeed, Ames thought, as he sat across the table from her, he had never seen one more beautiful. He had remained a month in this town to gain the privilege of raising Miriam Dennison on frank terms, to gain the privileges of looking frankly and freely into the depths of her eyes and possibly to reach there the end of his roving search.

"You mustn't mind if mother and I stare at you," laughed Miriam. "Father has talked of you so much today that he is to blame if we should happen to seem rude."

"I don't blame you myself," declared Tom Dennison. "John's a marvel. I'm going to adopt him!"

"That's very kind of you," returned John amiably. "You'll have a wayward son, though. You'll scarcely ever know where I am."

"Nonsense!" laughed Tom Dennison. "You're going to stay right here and take an important part in my traction business."

"No," he smilingly refused, and Tom Dennison, who knew men, caught the flimsy in his tone. "No, I must move on."

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

IT IS interesting to observe to what lengths Nash goes in painstaking shop practice, because it bears directly upon the quality that has earned Nash cars their nation-wide esteem.

To make certain that Nash cylinders are absolutely true, a stream of cold water is circulated through the water jackets as the barrels are machined. This prevents heat being generated by the operation of machining, and it is heat that expands the cylinder and causes the variations in size which distinguish inferior cylinders from Nash cylinders.

MRS. C. E. COOK DIES AT SCRANTON HOME

Mrs. Cooke, wife of Secretary C. E. Cook, of the local Y. M. C. A. who had been in a critical condition following the birth of a child some two weeks ago, died at the home of her parents in Scranton, Pa., at 6:30 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Cook was a fine Christian woman, who made many warm friends during her brief residence in Clearfield.

The sympathy of this community generally will go out to Secretary Cook in his sad bereavement.

The funeral will occur Monday morning at 10 o'clock, with interment at Esby, Pa.

TAKING ANNAPOLIS

EXAMINATION

Nathan Smith, who was recently named for appointment to the Annapolis Naval Academy, is taking the three day examination at DuBois. The examinations are being conducted in the Acorn Club rooms by Sec. T. E. Beck of the DuBois Civil Service Board. Ward Diekey, of DuBois and Arnold Driscoll, of Punxsutawney, are also taking the examination.

NO OLD WOMEN NOWADAYS

Modern dress, hair dressers, facial experts and cosmetics all combine to keep women of all ages young and attractive in appearance. Not until the telltale wrinkles become so deep the figure stoops, or some ailment or weakness develops to drag a woman down does she really look her age. Every woman owes it to herself, and her family to keep herself young in appearance, and happy. When head aches, backache or "the blues" develop or when a woman reaches the trying age from forty-five to fifty, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to keep her in health as it has so many other women whose letters we are continually publishing in this paper.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Coming To Clearfield May 4th

Billboards and store windows are now heralding the glad tidings of the coming of the majestic Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus on May 4. Advance Car No. 1 has already been here and according to the men in charge the exhibition this year will mark an epoch in trained animal feats and equestrian novelties.

The trained animal program has received much attention this season, as it is the prominent portion of the exhibition. Skilled trainers devoted the winter months to the teaching of new feats to the animals at winter headquarters in West Baden, Ind., and have perfected an astonishing program, which is promised to introduce feats never accomplished before.

In the three big rings features of European fame and headliner acts of America are billed. Leading clowns have been contracted and much overtime was consumed in preparing new pantomimic stunts assured to bring laughter from all. A jazz band composed of these mimics is only one of the many features.

A menagerie containing practically a specimen of every living animal today is being carried. It is said to be attracting wide spread attention, being beneficial from an educational viewpoint, as well as interesting. The doors are opened one hour before every performance so that spectators may enjoy a thorough visit through this menagerie.

For the convenience of patrons a downtown ticket office will be open during the visit of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus at Stewart Drug Store.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.
